“ I don't know why mom had to suffer with this terrible disease thru the last year's of her life. Maybe it was to teach us how precious time is with our loved ones and one day memories is.all we will have left. All I know is the last few years have definitely been hard ones for this family, but I would not have missed one minute of the time I spent with mom this year. There may have been times she didn't know who I was or couldn't carry on a conversation with me, but I could sit with her and hold her hand or hug her and tell her I loved her and give her a kiss on the cheek. I love you mom and I will miss you dearly. Your mind and body are whole again and you and dad are together again which is the only place you wanted to be. What better way to spend eternity then you and dad in heaven in God's loving embrace. I will see you one day again, but until then memories of you and your love will have to do.
